based on empirical studies of european energy and environmental policies this book suggests that in combination these two policy fields form a consensus in the eu which might also become the basis for a new european ideology namely european sustainabilism it asks why an environmental conscience has grown since the late 1960s in the industrialised world and shows that whilst there is undeniable environmental degradation during this time and that a european environmental conscience has mainly developed through successive steps of european integration in energy policy in this connection between energy and the environmental we find one driver for european integration and indeed european identity if sustainabilism should become a european ideology it will substantially influence the way future europeans will live this book will be of key interest to scholars and students of european studies international relations political science history economics sustainability studies environmental and energy policies in europe regulatory reforms in the eu s eastern neighbourhood countries are not as sluggish as often perceived rule enforcement is happening despite the presence of domestic veto players who favour the status quo the lack of eu membership perspective and the presence of russia as an alternative governance provider using ukraine as a primary case study this book examines why convergence with transnational market rules varies across different policy sectors within the eastern neighbourhood countries it analyzes the drivers of regulatory change and explores the conditions under which post soviet economies integrate with international markets in doing so it argues that the impetus for regulatory change in the eastern neighbourhood lies in specific strategies of domestic empowerment applied by external actors furthermore through the study of the impact of western and russian transnational actors the book concludes that russia s presence does not necessarily hinder the integration of the eu s eastern neighbours with international markets instead russia both weakens and strengthens domestic support for convergence with transnational market rules in the region this book will be of key interest to students and scholars of european eu studies and international relations especially in the areas of regulatory politics transnational governance public policy and post soviet transitions

the national politics of eu enlargement in the western balkans examines the way in which a number of european union member states including germany and france formulate their policies towards enlargement in the western balkans the six countries of the western balkans albania bosnia and herzegovina kosovo montenegro north macedonia and serbia are on course to become the next members of the european union while there has been a lot of work on the ways in which these countries are preparing for accession and how the eu as a whole approaches the question of expansion very little attention has been paid to how individual eu member states regard enlargement into a region that presents a number of serious challenges including the legacies of the conflicts of the 1990s economic underdevelopment and poor governance focusing on key states such as germany france and italy the neighbouring countries of central and south east europe and britain once a leading advocate of enlargement that is now in the process of leaving the european union this volume casts important new empirical and conceptual light on the diverse motivations that underpin member state attitudes towards eu enlargement the national politics of eu enlargement in the western balkans will be of great interest to scholars of the european union european politics and the politics of the western

this book explores the extent to which eu free trade agreements ftas pursue sustainable agriculture in third country parties it contends that this should be part of a duty for the eu enshrined in the treaties to promote its fundamental values in its external action it suggests that the extent to which this occurs in practice may be reviewed judicially by the court of justice of the european union against this background selected agreements concluded by the eu with developed and developing countries canada south korea ukraine chile sadc countries and vietnam are taken as case studies the author concludes that in spite of the remarkable progress made hitherto eu trade policy is still far from being in line with the increasingly strong commitment of the eu to take the lead in the international arena for environmental and climate matters this work adopts primarily a legal methodology but it broaches the subject in interdisciplinary terms it is addressed not only to eu policy makers but also to scholars of different fields and to the wider public interested in topics that have become of common concern for the future of our planet with a foreword by daniel calleja crespo director general of the european commission dg environment coherent laws enforced by a central authority are part of the reason why human rights protection works at the national level in europe but when it comes to the eu these dimensions are lacking the present system for protecting fundamental rights emerged on an ad hoc basis with measures being improvised to respond to particular problems in the next couple of years however this situation is likely to change very significantly the proposed european constitution incorporates the eu charter of fundamental rights and a specialized eu fundamental rights agency is likely to be established as a result the situation of the eu will more closely resemble that of its member states fundamental rights will occupy a central role and coherent and systematic arrangements will be in place to protect rights using both judicial and non judicial means the fundamental rights agency in particular has immense potential to ensure effective monitoring of fundamental rights in the eu and to ensure a unified strategy for their promotion in eu law and policy this volume is the first to critically examine the proposals put forward by the european commission in october 2004 on the creation of the eu fundamental rights agency leading scholars in the field of european and international human rights law analyse the potential significance of this innovative agency and seek to locate it in relation to various other human rights mechanisms both in the eu s constitutional structure and within member states they review the tasks which the agency could be called upon to perform and make proposals as to how it can function most effectively the relationship of eu law to the international law of human rights emerging from both the united nations and the council of europe is examined the authors also address the challenge of ensuring improved coherence between eu law and the other human rights obligations undertaken by the member states taken together these contributions address urgent questions facing the eu at a time when the central unifying function of fundamental rights has been recognized but the way forward remains largely uncharted
