the notion of light verb constructions has been traditionally related to the insignificance of the verb which is described as a grammatical item only codifying tam system and ḥ features whereas the whole predicative content is thought to be conveyed by the noun this book deals with the light verb constructions as instances of complex verbs intended as multi predicational but monoclausal structures this allows to deepen the actual verb lightness the effective noun predicativity as well as their effect on the cohesion of the construction the papers in this volume reflect on the concrete contribution of noun and verb to the event and argument structure and on the relevance of semantically different noun classes for the verb selection from different theoretical approaches data of a great variety of languages are investigated such as indo european languages both modern germanic slavic romance and iranian languages and ancient latin and ancient greek but also mandarin chinese and different polysynthetic languages e g ket nivkh murrinh patha kiowa bininj gun wok make it of great interest to both theoretical and applied linguists music and temple ritual in south india performing for Śiva documents the musical practices of the periya mēṭam a south indian instrumental ensemble of professional musicians who perform during the rituals and festivals of high caste brahmanical tamil hindu temples dedicated to the pan indian god Śiva an important patron of music since at least the tenth century it explores the ways in which music and ritual are mutually constitutive illuminating the cultural logics whereby performing and listening are integral to the kinetic sensory and affective experiences that enable shape and stimulate ritual communication in present day devotional hinduism more than a rich and vivid ethnographic description of a local tradition the book also develops a comprehensive and original analytical model in which music is understood as both a situated and creative activity and where the fluid relationship between humans and non humans in this case divine beings is truly taken into consideration in flesh and fish blood subramanian shankar breaks new ground in postcolonial studies by exploring the rich potential of vernacular literary expressions shankar pushes beyond the postcolonial anglophone canon and works with indian literature and film in english tamil and hindi to present one of the first extended explorations of representations of caste including a critical consideration of tamil dalit so called untouchable literature shankar shows how these vernacular materials are often unexpectedly politically progressive and feminist and provides insight on these oft overlooked but nonetheless sophisticated south asian cultural spaces with its calls for renewed attention to translation issues and comparative methods in uncovering disregarded aspects of postcolonial societies and provocative remarks on humanism and cosmopolitanism flesh and fish blood opens up new horizons of theoretical possibility for postcolonial studies and cultural analysis
