urban planning on the five lusophone african countries angola cape verde guinea bissau mozambique and sao tome and príncipe has so far been relatively overlooked in planning literature bringing together a team of leading scholars this book fills the gap by providing an in depth analysis of key issues in the history of urban planning and discussing the key challenges confronting contemporary urban planning in these countries the book argues that urban planning is a non neutral and non value free kind of public action and therefore ideology planning theories urban models and the ideological role urban planning has played are some of the key issues addressed for that reason the practice of urban planning is also seen as the outcome of a complex interrelationship between structure and agency with the role of key planers being examined in some of the chapters the findings and insights presented by the contributing authors confirm previous research on urban planning in the colonial and postcolonial periods in lusophone african countries and at the same time break fresh ground and offer additional insights as new evidence has been collected from archives and in fieldwork carried out by a new generation of researchers in addition it outlines possible directions for future research is south south cooperation ssc any different from other international partnerships in practice while straightforward this question often gets lost in conventional scholarship on ssc and international cooperation which privileges macro level narratives of how cooperation mechanisms fit within geopolitical concerns and shape the outcomes of foreign aid equity evaluation and international cooperation instead offers an answer from the ground up it highlights two main lessons from the close examination of the ecosystem of international cooperation projects in the urban water and sanitation sector in maputo mozambique first the book shows that macro labels attributed to international cooperation reflect very little about how cooperation projects operate on the ground and the equity consequences of their work second how projects are designed implemented and evaluated does matter to the quality of learning that emanates from partnerships beyond the geopolitical and technical proximities favored by the ssc discourse this book argues that what matters in practice is whether hierarchy or heterarchy is institutionalized in the governance of cooperation projects whether project partners are locally embedded in shared work spaces and whether practitioners value flexibility and recognize the epistemic value of learning from all partners as peers a strong evaluation culture within the international development industry however still subjugates such equity based concerns and deep learning in projects to accountability reinforcing orthodox power asymmetries in cooperation and sustaining epistemic and distributive injustice this book instead provides a framework for how project evaluations as a key narrative instrument of development can instead promote distributive procedural and epistemic justice in international cooperation projects this book is a result of an international and interdisciplinary research project known as the african copyright and access to knowledge aca2k project acknowledgments
